On the 10th of November 2015, well known publisher Milan Presse, located in the South of France, brought together 300 children in Capitol Square Toulouse to form a giant 2°C to show their commitment to protecting the Earth and their support for Cop21. With the journalists of Milan Presse, the 9-10 year old class of Pierre and Marie Curie primary school Toulouse imagined 12 climate solutions. These solutions have been illustrated by cartoonist Jacques Azam and make up the exhibition you are about to visit.

Enjoy the exhibition!

Milan is an edutainment specialist, producing 27 magazines with passion, for toddlers to teenagers. Milan is a subsidiary of Bayard, the foremost children's press publishing group in France.

We believe that making children understand our world and tackle major ecological issues, helps them become citizens of tomorrow. In November 2015, Milan took the COP21 opportunity to organize the "Children for Climate" event in Toulouse, sponsored by well-known climate defender Nicolas Hulot. 80,000 children aged 9/10 years old were asked to think and act all together against climate change.
