Where and when will the Conference take place?

EUROCLIO's 25th Annual Conference will take place from 21st-26th April 2018. The location of the 2018 EUROCLIO Annual Conference is Marseille, France. If you arrive in France before 21st April, please, make sure that the conference organizers are informed beforehand if you have not yet done so.

Since Antiquity, the Mediterranean Basin has been the centre for the three monotheisms, flourishing civilisations, migrations, the development of cultural, scientific and economic exchanges, but also for the intersections of wars. Today, unfortunately, the Mediterranean Basin is the theatre of a humanitarian crisis that has challenged the collective leadership around the sea. Marseille, as port city facing the Mediterranean, was the perfect choice for historical, cultural and civil educators from across Europe to convene for a series of workshops and events centred on the themes of People on the Move, War and Peace, and A Common Heritage.

The conference activities (aside from external visits) will take place in the Historical Museum of Marseille (Musée d'Histoire de Marseille), the Museum of European and Mediterranean Civilisations (MUSEM), the High School of Marseillevyre (Lycée Marseillevyre), and the University of Aix-Marseille.
